

Improved working environment!

The working conditions within food production are important for food workers, and there are many challenges. The risk of being injured at work is high, and many cannot stay their entire working life. That is why work environment management is a highly prioritized area for the union.

The jobs within food production industries are demanding. They are often performed at a rapid pace and require a lot of heavy lifts. Noises and repeated movements are a part of everyday life and the work is performed around the clock. The staff turnover is high which means that many have to be trained. Many employees are born outside of Sweden and language difficulties are common.

For food workers, it is necessary that the work and the work organization are developed, that the work environment is improved and that they can access continuous skills development. In short, investments for a more sustainable and increased Swedish food production.

We want

- Food workers to get a general cut in weekly working hours
- Employment security to be strengthened
- The role of the safety representative to be strengthened

On the website Hela svaret we explain further what we find important.
